

THE LUCKIEST GUY - GDD

Game Identity / Mantra:

Following the sudden death of all the superheroes in the world, one college dropout takes on the role of stopping the (unfortunately not dead!) evildoers with nothing but some really, really crazy luck.

Jazzpunk-inspired first-person 3D action adventure game about a lucky superhero fighting bad guys.

Design Pillars:

- Action
- Comedy/corny
- Meta but not to the point that its trying too hard
- 2010s time period (20xx)

Genre/Story/Mechanics Summary:

PROTAGONIST: The main character is a lucky guy (who was not always lucky: there should be a funny reason why he is lucky). He is above 21 years old, and he gets all his income from winning the lottery (Unemployed).

INTRO: We see him gambling at a casino, where he wins it big – even the dealer is flabbergasted (the dealer is shown to be visibly cheating). He leaves the building with stacks of cash and comments on how his rent just got covered.

It's odd how easily he got away with this...but that's because he didn't. A bunch of outraged gamblers and casino staff burst out the door behind him. —> enter combat tutorial

ANTAGONIST: An unlucky superhero whose ability got every other superhero killed. Foil to the protag, he should be very passionate about his line of work.

SETTING: There used to be many superheroes, but they all died (There was a really strong bad guy who wiped them out. He should have a stupid ability like the mc's luck: UNLUCKY?). The protag isn't a hero, but uses his luck to play the role of hero in the others' stead (huge ego)

STORY BEATS:

1. [OPENING/TUTORIAL] Mc gets a lot of money from the casino (5x jackpot winner), has to fight the casino owner (bad guy #1 and tutorial enemy). He suspects he may be lucky after this incident.

2. [LET THE PLAYER TEST WHAT THEY LEARNED IN 1] MC goes to spend his newfound money very responsibly on scratch tickets (to confirm if he's actually lucky) and gets into some type of altercation, (maybe robbed?). That's bad guy #2. He makes some witty comment about his win on the ticket then goes into beating the guy
3. MC officially starts his hero arc. Bad guy #3? #3 should be the most threatening bad guy, but the MC still wins because he is lucky. Should be a close call, hook into the main plot of the game.
4. The final boss (STRETCH GOAL AFTER STEELHACKS)

GAMEPLAY: The player will run around, interacting with npcs to progress the story. He will fight bad guys, but there will not be any sophisticated combat sequence. We can either do a minigame or purely text-based.

Features:

List the cool features or unique elements that you want to include in your game.

GAMBLING MINIGAMES: Slots, coin flips, etc.

NPCS: They're mainly there for commentary right now. One stock image for regular npcs + 2 named NPCS.

4 Bad Guys including the final boss antagonist.

Interface:

- Simple inventory bar on the bottom
- Main menu
- Textboxes (simple black bar with text inside)
- Minigame/turn-based combat[?] interface

LOVELOBLACK

LoveloBlack

Art Style:

Include references to lots of images and games that have a similar aesthetic to what you're trying to achieve.

Jazzpunk-esque. 2D/3D hybrid where the characters are 3D cardboard cutouts with a 2D chibi image plastered on.

Asset Requirements:

- Design the MC
- Design the 2-3 Bad guys
- Stock NPC design / Minor adjustments depending on context

Music/Sound:

ANDREW

Development Roadmap / Launch Criteria:

Platform: Steam/Windows

Audience: E for everyone!

Milestone 1: Design Doc/Assignments
complete - DONE

Milestone 2: Assets complete - Sat @ 12am

Milestone 3: Implementation complete - Sun
@ 12am

-----
Launch Day: Sun @ 11am